Acknowledgements

The 1984-85 Annual Report is published pursuant to chapter 78, section 3, subsection 21 (3) (b) of the Utah Code Annotated by the Utah Judicial Council through the Office of the State Court Administrator.

Appreciation is expressed to members of the Administrative Office staff for their efforts in compiling and writing this report. Acnkowledgment is also due to the following individuals for their special assistance: Geoffrey Butler, Michael Haveman, Judge Joseph Jones, Roger Lee, Kerry Passey, Michael Phillips and Daniel Price.

Finally, it is recognized that without the contribution of the many individuals working in the trial courts who faithfully record and report statistical data, this report would not be possible.

Citizens of the State of Utah

The Honorable Norman H. Bangerter
Governor, State of Utah

The Honorable Members of the 46th Utah Legislature

On behalf of the Utah Judicial Council it is our pleasure to present to you the twelfth Annual Report of the Utah Judiciary. This report reflects the activities of the Judicial Branch during fiscal year 1984-85, and focuses on some of the major issues and challenges facing the Utah Court System in the near future.

The past year has seen some major events transpire, particularly with the passage of the new Judicial Article in November of 1984. An attempt was made in the report to reflect the impact of the changes in the Judicial Article on the Utah court system.

The report is divided into two sections. The first section deals with the function, funding and workload of each level of the court system. It also reports on programs and procedures undertaken during the year to improve the efficiency and accessibility of the courts. The second section contains specific court data reported through the State Judicial Information System, and provides statistics for a more detailed review of court activity.

Utah's courts are facing major challenges resulting from a growing population and the increasing complexity of our society. The Judicial Council is aggressively moving forward to implement further changes now possible under the Constitution of Utah to improve the effectiveness, efficiency and accountability of Utah's courts. With the continued commitment of Utah's three branches of government to improving the quality of justice, we can optimistically look to the future.

Sincerely,

Gordon R. Hall
Chief Justice

JUDICIAL COUNCIL

A Judicial Council was first established in Utah in 1973 in order to unify the policies and procedures of the trial courts and to better administer the needs of each court system. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court chairs the council. Currently, four District Court judges, one Juvenile Court Judge, one Circuit Court Judge and one Justice of the Peace comprise the voting membership of the Council. In addition, the Utah State Bar President or his designee serves as a non voting member. The State Court Administrator serves as secretary and staff for the Council.

The revised Judicial Article of the State Constitution, effective July 1, 1985, makes the Judicial Council a constitutional body with the responsibility of adopting rules for the administration of the courts of the State. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court is designated as the chief administrative officer for the courts and shall implement the rules adopted by the council.

The Judicial Council holds open meetings monthly at the Administrative Office of the Courts in Salt Lake City. In addition to formulating internal policies for the trial courts, the Council meetings also provide opportunities for other branches of state government, federal agencies and citizens groups to present issues and concerns directly to the judiciary.

During the reporting year the Judicial Council was involved in a number of important activities.

Judicial Article. The most prominent of the Judicial Council activities involved efforts to support and assist with the passage of the new Judicial Article to the State Constitution. The Judicial Council coordinated efforts with the Utah State Bar Association and the Judicial Council Advisory Committee to educate the public on the advantages of the new Article. In addition, the Council assisted the Governor with the formulation of a task force to prepare the legislation needed to implement the provisions of the Judicial Article. In May of 1985 the Task Force on the Judicial Article established by Governor Norman H. Bangerter began work on recommending and preparing implementing legislation for the 1986 legislative session.

Judicial Compensation. With the assistance of the Judicial Council Advisory Committee the Council worked with the Executive Compensation Commission regarding the establishment of equitable salary levels for Supreme Court and trial court judges. The work with the Executive Compensation Commission is also an important part of the effort to effectively present judicial salary needs to the legislature.

Sentencing Guidelines. The Judicial Council Sentencing Guidelines Committee participated with the Utah Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice in developing sentencing guidelines. The purpose of such guidelines is to address concerns regarding differences in perspective and the lack of consensus among various elements of the criminal justice system regarding sentencing. Guidelines were developed with three underlying philosophies: criminal sentences should be proportionate to the seriousness of the offense for which the offender is convicted, the risk the offender poses to society, as inferred from the offender's criminal history should be a major factor in sentencing, and aggravating and mitigating circumstances are compelling considerations in allowing flexibility in sentencing.

Capital Facilities Survey. The Judicial Council prepared a survey of capital facilities statewide. The study was undertaken to develop a master plan and priority listing of facility needs for the entire state court system. The study included an evaluation of facilities and needs throughout the state and indicated court security deserves more attention. The study recommended the establishment of a Utah Courts Facilities Accreditation Commissioner to prepare and maintain a court facility plan, prescribe minimum standards, inspect and accredit facilities and report findings. In addition, specific recommendations were made regarding maintenance and promotion of court security.

Probation Services Policy & Legislation. During 1984 the Judicial Council worked with the State Division of Corrections to recommend and implement policy to allow Corrections to better control probation services provided to the courts. The policy developed included: recommendations for improving in the pre-sentence investigation format through the establishment of separate formats for class B and class A misdemeanors and felony pre-sentence reports, becoming more active in verifying and obtaining information existing in the system that heretofore has not been effectively utilized; expanding the recommendation section of the pre-sentence report; and improving the supervision process.

Dissemination of Court Information. The Judicial Council Standing Committee on Records and Forms studied the subject of dissemination of court records to develop guidelines for use by clerks and other court personnel. The areas focused on by the Committee include: defining which judicial records are public writings and which are administrative in nature; establishing guidelines to clearly control dissemination of administrative records similar to those of the executive branch; establishing guidelines to ensure that private agencies examining judicial records do not impair the everyday functioning of the court; and determining a uniform method of assessing costs of special searches.

To assist the Committee in its project, data has been collected on procedures currently being used throughout Utah and in other states. The guidelines will be presented to the Judicial Council and upon approval, issued to the courts for their use.

JUDICIAL COUNCIL ADVISORY COMMITTEE

The Judicial Council and the courts of Utah are sensitive to the concerns of the public regarding the operation of the judicial system. In 1974, the Council established a committee of citizens to advise the Council on public concerns relating to the judiciary. The committee members meet monthly at the Office of the State Court Administrator to undertake special projects to help bridge the gap between the judicial process and the average citizen taxpayer. The committee is comprised of fifteen members from a geographical cross-section of the State.

Members of the Advisory Committee participate in many activities of the judiciary. They attend the Annual Judicial Conference and have been invited to speak at regional conferences. A representative of the Committee attends each Judicial Council meeting and reports on citizen concerns.

During 1984-85, the Advisory Committee members were active participants in the legislative process. The Committee reviewed proposed bills affecting the judiciary and provided the legislature with their input as concerned citizens.

The Advisory Committee has spent considerable time in the study of the victims rights issue and how the courts can best address the needs of victims. Preliminary recommendations that address the need for victim input into the judicial process were adopted by the Judicial Council and implementation was begun by the trial courts.

The Advisory Committee has also monitored the progress of the courts in dealing with victim rights. To assist in implementing their recommendations, committee members sponsored a pilot victim advocate program in Davis County. This program is primarily directed by the Davis County Sheriff's Office. The Second District Court Judges and Court Executive have worked with the Advisory Committee in a supportive capacity to help guide the program, which is designed to serve as a model for other counties in setting up victim resources.

The Advisory Committee also sponsored a study of the issues in determining judicial salaries for presentation to the Executive and Judicial Compensation Commission. This extensive report was well received by the Commission.

Future projects for the Advisory Committee include further efforts in the area of public education and awareness of the role of the courts in our society.

JUDICIAL CONDUCT COMMISSION

The Judicial Conduct Commission is established under section 78-7-28 of the Utah Code. Under the statute, the Commision has the responsibility to investigate allegations of misconduct against judges. The Commission has the authority to take disciplinary action, including removal from office, suspension, censure, involuntary retirement or reprimand in cases where misconduct has occured. All actions taken by the Commission must be reviewed and ratified by the Supreme Court.

Activities of the Judicial Conduct Commission involve the review of allegations of unethical, illegal and unprofessional conduct on the part of judges associated with their judicial position and responsibilities. Complaints regarding the interpretations and decisions of judges on the law and the facts in individual cases tried before them are handled through the legal appeal process.

Under statute, conduct on the part of judges that requires disciplinary action by the Judicial Conduct Commission includes: wilful misconduct in office; conviction of a felony; wilful and persistent failure to perform judicial duties; disability that seriously interfers with the performance of judicial duties; and conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice which brings a judicial office into disrepute. In addition, Justices of the Peace may be disciplined for failure to obtain and maintain certification for attendance at required training courses.

Judicial Conduct Commission meetings are held on a monthly basis. The membership is comprised of nine representatives appointed as follows: three members of the Board of Commissioners of the Utah Bar Association; two members appointed by the Speaker of the Utah House of Representatives; two members appointed by the President of the Utah Senate; and two members appointed by the Governor. One of the members is selected as chairman. An executive director is also appointed to provide staff support for the Commission.

During 1985 the Commission reviewed seventy-five matters, including fifty-five cases filed in 1985 and twenty cases held over from 1984. Of the seventy-five cases considered four were determined serious matters by the Commission, resulting in two censures and two reprimands. There are presently twenty-nine matters pending that will be concluded in 1986.

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE OF THE COURTS

Utah's Court Administrator Act creates an administrative system for trial courts to achieve uniformity and coordination in the administration of justice within the state.

Working under the direction of the Judicial Council is the State Court Administrator, a professional in the field of public administration and court procedures. Utah's State Court Administrator has a large range of statutory powers, duties and responsibilities to insure the efficient operation of the state's trial court systems.

The Court Administrator's Office coordinates administrative policies and procedures for trial courts. It supplies valuable resource materials such as the Criminal Benchbook, Justice of the Peace Manual, Uniform Bail Schedule and compiles and publishes this Annual Report. The Court Administrator's Office also organizes and coordinates judicial education and judicial assistance programs for all trial court judges.

Each District and Circuit Court has a Presiding Judge who has responsibility for the operation of that court. Assisting the Presiding Judge is a Trial Court Executive, a professional court administrator. Trial Court Executives from Circuit and District Courts all over the state meet monthly at the Court Administrator's Office to help formulate uniform and effective court procedures throughout the state.

Programs and Activities

The following represent some of the specific activities and programs of the Office of the Court Administrator during the period covered by this report.

Retirement of Richard V. Peay. On January 4, 1985 Richard V. Peay retired as the State Court Administrator. Mr. Peay was appointed Utah's first State Court Administrator with the passage of the Utah Court Administrator's Act in 1973. During his eleven year tenure as State Court Administrator significant changes and improvements were achieved in all levels of the state court system.

Major accomplishments during Mr. Peay's tenure include passage of the Circuit Court and Justice of the Peace Act in 1977, the revision and passage of the Judicial Article in 1984, the establishment of Rule 4.1 of the Uniform Rules of Practice, and the development of the State Judicial Information System. Other important programs include establishing a trial court executive system, the Judicial Council Advisory Committee and Judicial Council Standing Committees.

Appointment of William C. Vickrey. On May 1, 1985 William C. Vickrey was appointed by the Supreme Court to succeed Richard Peay as State Court Administrator. Before his appointment, Mr. Vickrey had served as the Director of the State Division of Corrections. Mr. Vickrey came to the post of State Court Administrator having had considerable experience and success in public administration and in working with the legislature in developing programs. One of his first tasks has been to assist the Task Force appointed by Governor Bangerter to recommend and develop legislation to implement provisions of the new Judicial Article.

Personnel. The Utah judiciary has its own personnel system which is responsible for recruitment, testing, selection, classification, compensation and training of empoyees. Although these functions are coordinated through a central personnel office, many of them are performed at the District, Juvenile and Circuit Court levels.

In order to insure that merit principles are uniformly applied in administration of the personnel system, emphasis during the last year has been placed upon developing statewide guidelines for use in local areas throughout the state. Equal employment representatives have been designated and trained in each circuit and district to help insure the implementation of fair employment practices. In addition, considerable effort has been placed on developing selection guidelines and procedures for key court positions which insure consistency within the state while still allowing for some local flexibility. These efforts have enhanced the ability of the courts to insure a high quality staff.

An area of emphasis for the future is training. Financial and staff resources have been made available by the legislature to begin the development of a comprehensive training program for judicial and non-judicial personnel. Increased emphasis in this area will help to improve and insure a high level of performance from the judicial branch of government.

Criminal History and Case Reporting. The Court Administrator's office and the Utah Bureau of Criminal Identification worked together to consolidate several of their criminal case reporting forms into one form, the Utah Arrest and Court Filing/Disposition Report.

The new form facilitates the establishment of a complete and accurate criminal history through improved collection of defendants' fingerprints. It also maintains continuity in case reporting among law enforcement agencies and the courts through the use of a control number which ties together all actions pertaining to the arrest of each defendent.

Uniform Bail Schedule. The Judicial Council Standing Committee on The Uniform Bail Schedule is preparing a revision of the schedule to bring it into line with recent legislative changes regarding assessment fees. In addition, the Committee is considering the possibility of incorporating sentencing guidelines into the bail schedule.

All limited jurisdiction courts in the state have been surveyed for suggestions as to how the schedule might be improved. This data is being evaluated by the Committee and compiled into a revised schedule. In order to include possible changes considered by the 1986 legislature, the reprinting is scheduled for the Spring of 1986.

Capital Facilities. The state judicial system capital facilities improvement program consists of identifying inadequate court facilities and specific court locations that should be accommodated with new construction.

Construction projects that are underway include a new joint court complex in Carbon County that will house the District, Juvenile and Circuit Courts. Community impact funds were obtained to construct the facility. The state lease for Circuit and Juvenile Courts will be used to help retire the debt service and for operations and maintenance expenses.

A facility recently completed is the Cedar City Hall of Justice, which houses the Juvenile, Circuit and Justice of the Peace Courts. Additionally, a building owned by Cache County and leased to the Circuit Court, is to be remodeled so that the District, Juvenile and Circuit Courts can locate there.

All of these projects are part of an effort by the courts to provide joint use of court facilities throughout the state where practical.

For the future, new court buildings for the Juvenile Court in Ogden and the Circuit Courts in Orem, Provo and Murray have been approved by the Utah State Building Board. Finally, the courts are working jointly with local officials in West Valley, Layton, Spanish Fork, Tooele and Bountiful to upgrade as well as improve facilities determined to be substandard or that require relocation.

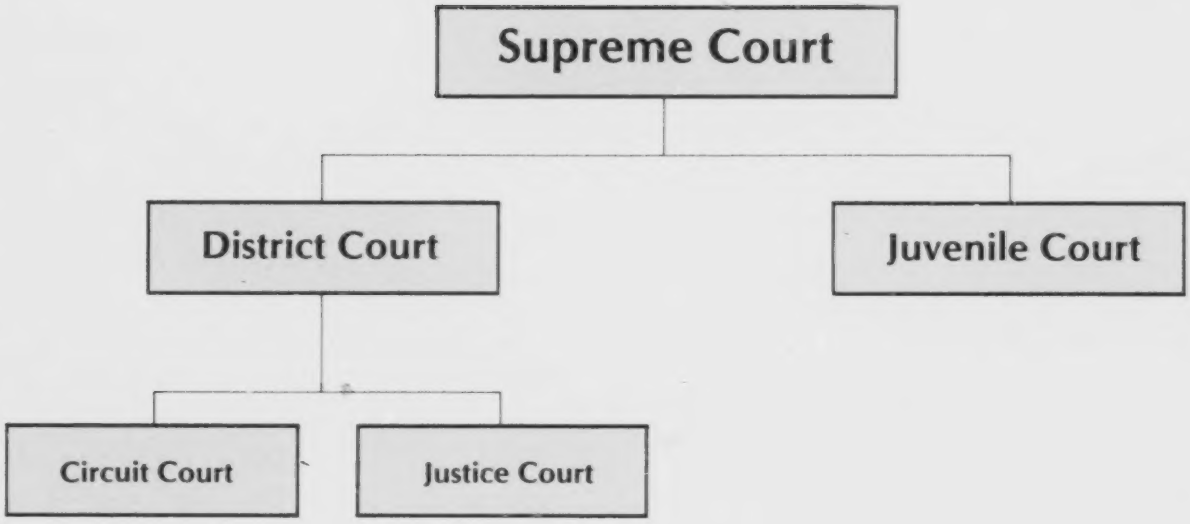
UTAH COURT SYSTEM

APPELLATE STRUCTURE



SUPREME COURT

When Utah became a state in 1896, the new Constitution established a judicial branch of government composed of a Supreme Court and two levels of trial courts. Originally, the Supreme Court consisted of three justices, each elected to serve for six year terms, after which they could run for reelection. In 1917 the State Legislature approved a bill adding two more justices to the court making a total of four associate justices with one Chief Justice. The 1917 act also lengthened their term of office to ten years.

In 1951 legislation was passed to elect justices on a non-partisan ballot. Candidates for the position of Supreme Court justice were no longer to be affiliated with a politcal party or take an active part in party politics. In 1967 the Legislature established a bipartisan nominating commission for the purpose of filling Supreme Court vacancies. The act also provided that justices running for re-election, even if running unopposed, must receive a majority of the votes cast in the election. Also in 1969 the mandatory retirement age for Supreme Court justices was set at age 72.

Jurisdiction

The Utah Supreme Court is the court of last resort in matters of state jurisdiction. The Supreme Court also has original jurisdiction to hear petitions for extraordinary relief such as writs of habeas corpus and mandamus, and interlocutory appeals from District and Circuit Courts.

There is a right of direct appeal to the Supreme Court from final judgments of District Courts, from the Juvenile Court and from administrative agencies of state government. Appeals may also originate in Circuit Court and advance through the District Court in cases where the constitutionality of a state statute has been challenged.

In addition to its appellate function the Supreme Court is charged with the admission and supervision of attorneys. It delegates responsibility in these matters to the Utah State Bar. Since 1981 the Bar has carefully implemented procedures to manage the discipline of attorneys, and in 1985 a task force from the American Bar Association reviewed this system and reported favorably to the Utah Supreme Court.

Judiciary

The Utah Supreme Court is comprised of five justices appointed by the Governor. Under former constitutional provisions, the justices served ten year terms which expired on a rotating schedule every two years. The Justice with the least amount of time remaining in his term was designated as the Chief Justice. With the establishment of the new Judicial Article which took effect on July 1, 1985, the five justices will serve ten year terms subject to a retention election three years after initial appointment. Future Supreme Court appointees will also be confirmed by the Utah Senate. The method of selecting the Chief Justice will be determined by statute.

Administration

The Chief Justice is the chief administrative officer for the Supreme Court and is the highest administrative officer in the judicial system of the state. By statute the Chief Justice presides over the Judicial Council and also chairs the Supreme, District and Juvenile Court nominating commissions.

The Supreme Court conducts its business on a monthly schedule. The court generally sits the first and third Mondays of each month for the purpose of hearing and deciding matters presented on a law and motion calendar. These are generally matters in which the opposing sides do not contest the facts presented, but do disagree on the proper application of law to those facts. Following the presentation of the arguments of the attorneys, the members of the court hold a conference to reach a decision and to determine whether a written opinion should be issued.

In the second full week of each month, the court hears the arguments of counsel on cases calendared for hearing that month. The court schedules 25 new cases each month. After hearing the arguments of lawyers and reading the arguments contained in briefs, the justices hold conferences and reach a consensus of opinion. One justice is assigned to write an opinion. Writing assignments are made on a rotation basis to distribute the caseload as equally as possible. Justices may elect to write separate concurring or dissenting opinions.

Caseload

During calendar year 1984 the court received 712 new filings. This compares with 784 filings received in 1983. Based on the first nine months of the year, 1985 filings are projected to reach approximately 730 new appeals, a slight increase (about 2%) over 1984 filings.

Comparison of Supreme Court Filings

Juvenile Court	2	4	(+100.0)
Atty. Discipline & Bar Business	10	18	(+80.0)
Total	784	712	(-9.1)

The Supreme Court recorded 677 dispositions reached during calendar year 1984. This number was down slightly from the 691 dispositions reached in 1983, which was the highest number in the court's history. Of the 1984 dispostions recorded, 45% resulted in written opinions, 47% resulted in dismissals and 8% in summary dispositions. The number of dispositions projected for 1985 is 600.

A recent study conducted by the National Center for State Courts concluded that the Utah Supreme Court is one of the most efficient appellate courts in the country. The average number of opinions per justice is 61 compared with a national average of 35-40. The Supreme Court has maintained a high level of efficiency and productivity in the face of significant and consistent increases in caseload and in spite of the fact that the number of justices has remained constant since 1917. For example, in 1965 the court heard 223 appeals compared with the 677 decisions reached in 1984.

Financing

The operation of the Utah Supreme Court is funded by the state. The Supreme Court budget for fiscal year 1984-85 was $1,303,886, an increase of 8.9% over the 1983-84 budget of $1,197,305. The Supreme Court collects a small amount of revenue, mostly in the form of filing fees and attorney admission fees.

Programs and Activities

In January of 1985 the Supreme Court promulgated the Utah Rules of Appellate Procedure, which made significant changes in traditional methods of preparation and disposition of cases on appeal. The rules committee reviewed the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure to minimize disparity between the state and federal rules where possible.

Some of the new rules have taken an innovative approach to the appellate process. For example, Rule 31 provides for an expedited hearing and opinion in cases where the parties stipulate that a traditional written opinion is not necessary.

Issues

The primary issue facing the Supreme Court at the present time is a burgeoning caseload and resulting backlog of cases. In a recently completed study the National Center For State Courts reported: "The court has been and is working at capacity, yet is unable to address the rising tide of filings. Filings in 1990 are project to be 28 percent higher that they were in 1984." From among the options available for dealing with the court's overload, the National Center recommended the establishment of a court of appeals. The Governor's Task Force on the Judicial Article, which has recently completed its report to the Governor, has also recommended the creation of a court of appeals as the best option for dealing with the Supreme Court caseload and backlog problems.

Another issue involves the method of selection of the Chief Justice. The Chief Justice is currently selected as the justice with the least amount of time remaining in his elected term. The Governor's Task Force, in preparing implementation legislation for the new judicial article, has recommended that the Chief Justice be selected by majority vote of the justices. The term of office would be four years without the possibility of a successive term.

DISTRICT COURT

The District Court has long been an integral part of Utah's court system. From as early as 1850, Utah was divided into judicial districts in order to provide for the equitable distribution of justice to all the people living in the territory.

From 1850 until statehood there were three districts in the territory. In 1896 the new state constitution established seven District Courts throughout the state in an effort to place the courts within easy access to all citizens. District Courts were required to hold terms of court in each county seat within the district at least three times a years. Since 1896 there have been very few changes in the District Court structure, aside from some realignment of judicial districts.

The District Courts are funded primarily by the counties in which they sit. The state funds the salaries of the judges and provides some administrative support. All other support costs are paid by the counties. Court revenues, except for civil filing fees are remitted to the counties.

Jurisdiction

The District Court is Utah's trial court of general jurisdiction. It has original jurisdiction in all civil matters and exlusive jurisdiction for claims over $10,000. The District Court has jurisdiction to try all criminal offenses with the exception of municipal ordinance violations and exclusive jurisdiction to try felony cases. Currently, the District Court also has appellate jurisdiction over the Circuit Courts and may conduct a trial de novo (new trial) in cases appealed from the Justice of the Peace Courts.

Judiciary

There are presently seven judicial districts throughout the state and twenty-nine District Court Judges. Each of Utah's twenty-nine counties has a District Court division.

Vacant judicial positions in Utah's trial courts of record are filled through a nominating commission process by gubernatorial appointment, and are subject to senate confirmation. Judges are subject to a retention election at the first general election to be held no more than three years after appointment, then every sixth year thereafter.

Prior to July 1, 1985 judges ran for election after initial appointment on a retention ballot that could be contested by any qualified candidate (member of the Utah Bar). Pursuant to the 1985 Judicial Article revision to the Utah Constitution, judges run for reelection on an unopposed retention ballot. The term of a District Court Judge after initial voter approval is six years.

Administration

In each of the seven judicial districts which have more than one judge a Presiding Judge is elected by majority vote of the judges for a two year term. The Presiding Judge, in addition to judicial responsibilities, has the responsibility to oversee administrative matters for the district, including management of the court calendar, scheduling of trials, and implementing the policies of the judicial district as adopted by a majority of the judges.

The Presiding Judge is assisted by a Trial Court Executive, a professional administrator who is appointed by the Presiding Judge with the concurrence of a majority of judges in the district. In addition, under existing statutes, the County Clerk in each county is the clerk of the District Court when a judge is sitting in that county. Clerical support and other administrative services are therefore provided by the county in which the court is located.

Court Caseload

District Court filings showed an increase in fiscal year 1984-85 of 2.1% from the previous fiscal year. Actual filings recorded were 32,848 compared with 32,145 during fiscal year 1983-84.

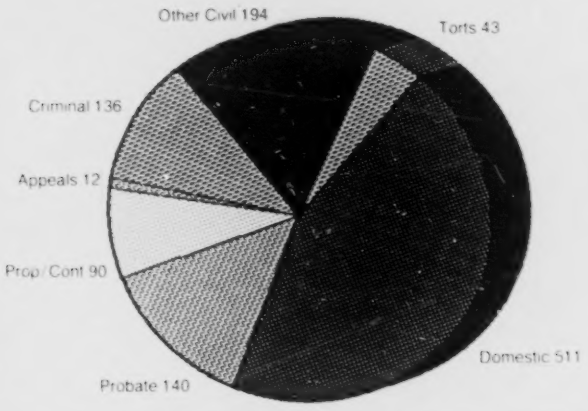
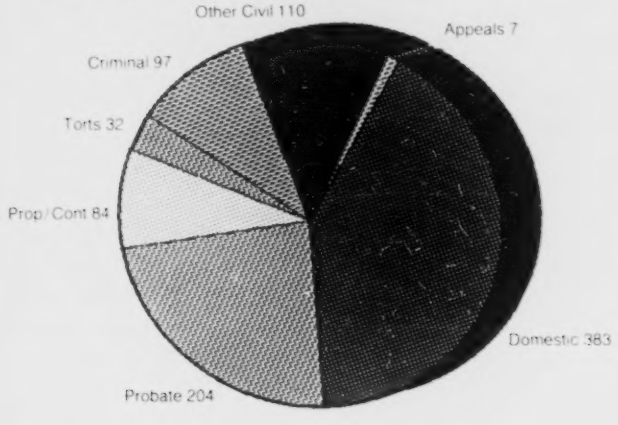
Civil filings showed an overall increase of 2.8% for 1984-85. In the civil case category, domestic relations and probate cases increased 2% and 42.7% respectively during the reporting period. Some decrease was recorded in property, contract, personal injury (tort) and other civil case categories. Criminal filings decreased 2.5% during fiscal year 1984-85 from 3,937 filings in 1983-84 to 3,837 filings in 1984-85. A 15% increase in appeals to District Court was reported for fiscal year 1984-85.

District Court Filings Per Judge By Case Type — 1984-85

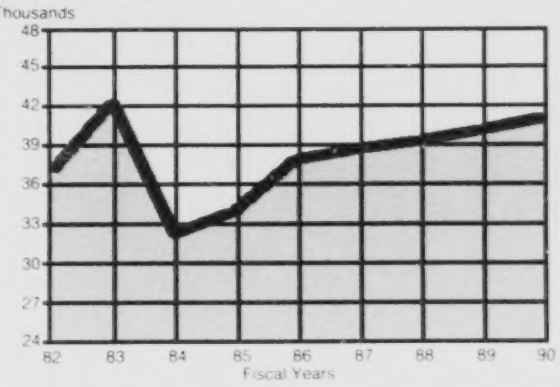


An impressive increase was shown in dispositions recorded in the District Court during fiscal year 1984-85. Dispositions were up in all categories of civil cases as follows: domestic relations, 37.4%; probate, 12.3%; property and contract cases, 16.7%; personal injury, 38.9%; other civil, 41%; appeals, 26.1%. Overall, civil dispositions increased 30.4% and criminal dispositions 25.5%. There was a total increase in dispositions for all categories of cases of 29.2%. In several categories of cases there were more dispositions recorded than cases filed. This shows continued effort and progress in reducing backlog and the time from filing to disposition of cases.

District Court Dispositions Per Judge By Case Type — 1984-85



District Court Projected Filings



It is anticipated that past trends of caseload increases will continue in the District Court, particularly as a result of continued population expansion in the State and the continuing increase in the use of litigation to resolve disputes. It is also expected that law enforcement agencies will continue or increase efforts, particularly in the area of property crimes. Nevertheless, with increased use of automation and up-to-date court management practices, along with the necessary personnel and other resources required, it is anticipated that the District Court will be able to continue to respond to the needs of the citizens of Utah with its traditional high level of dedication and professionalism.

Financing

The cost of operating the District Court is shared by the counties and the state. The state provides the salaries of the judges and items in support of the judges including travel reimbursement. Administrative support, legal research assistance, Court Reporters and Trial Court Executives are also state assumed expenses. The state reimburses criminal case jury and witness fees. The counties provide clerical support under the direction of the County Clerk.

District Court expenditures for the State and the counties during fiscal year 1984-85 totaled $8,715,693, up 19.0% from the fiscal year 1983-84. Of the total, $3,266,993 were state expenditures and $5,448,700 was expended by county governments in their dual role of funding the district court system. Revenues for the District Court in fiscal year 1984-85 increased 6.1% from 1983-84 to $2,033,415.

Programs and Activities

Court Commissioner Program. A court commissioner program already in use in the Third District Court since 1982, will be studied for consideration in the Second and Fourth Judicial Districts. The Third District Court program has been effective in facilitating out of court settlements in domestic relations cases. The commissioner hears motions and holds informal conferences to promote early settlements while the divorce is pending. About 80% of Third District Court domestic relations cases now go through the commissioner screening process and the majority of cases are resolved at that time.

Calendaring. The employment of court management principles and techniques was continued during 1984-85. For example, an individual calendaring program for civil and domestic cases established in 1983 in the Third District Court was extended to criminal cases during 1984-85. Since individual calendaring has been established in the Third District the time from filing of the certificate of readiness for trial to the granting of a trial date has been reduced from approximately one year to one month. Presently, only about 4% of Third District pending cases are awaiting court action.

Teleconferencing. Teleconferencing equipment installed in the Third District Court in 1983 through funding by the Salt Lake County Bar Association has effectively been used to streamline court hearing procedures. Teleconferencing is used in lieu of formal more traditional court hearings, such as procedural and settlement conferences, motion hearings and continuances. During the past year 1,144 teleconferencing calls were placed.

Issues

The increasing automation of district court systems should receive increased attention in the coming months. County governments, as providers of clerical support services for the district court are involved most in the task of court automation. In this process there has been individual development of automated systems using different equipment and software, and systems in differing jurisdictions are often incompatable. As a result, a judicial district comprised of locations in three counties might be unable to communicate internally by way of its automated systems.

The situation is compounded by the incompatibility of many county systems with the system being developed statewide by the combined efforts of the Circuit Courts and the State Court Administrator's Office. Therefore, the District Court's participation in the statewide automation process for the courts is a pressing issue that needs to be resolved in the near future.

Security issues must be studied and addressed. Guidelines in several districts are being developed and some improved security measures have been implemented. In a few districts in-court security has been improved through the establishment of alarm systems and additional security personnel or enhanced ability of those personnel (such as court bailiffs) to deal with security problems. It is anticipated that future court facilities or the remodeling of current facilities will be designed to increase protection to judges, court personnel and the public.

The Court maintains 21 offices statewide where clerical or probation staff are assigned full or part time.

JUVENILE COURT

The people of Utah have long recognized the need for a special court system to deal with the complexities of justice for children. A concern for juvenile justice was shown as early as 1852 when the territorial legislature enacted the concept of parens patriae (the prerogative of the state to act as guardian to persons with legal disabilities, such as minors). However, it was not until 1905 that a separate Juvenile Court was created. Since 1905 the state has considered the unique problems of juvenile justice and has modified and expanded the Juvenile Court system to keep pace with progress in the law and ever changing social conditions. As a result, in 1965 the Juvenile Court Act created an independent Juvenile Court within the judicial branch of government and under the supervision of the Supreme Court.

Utah's Juvenile Court system is a unified state level system divided into five geograpnic districts. The role of the Juvenile Court is to administer justice and enforce laws where youth commit offenses in violation of the law. The Juvenile Court Act mandates the balance between protection of the public and protection of children less than 18 years of age and gives emphasis to the protection of the legal rights of parents and families.

Jurisdiction

The Juvenile Court jurisdiction, by statute, embraces the following areas: criminal law violations by juveniles; limited status offenses, such as truancy, curfew and ungovernability; abuse, neglect or dependency of children and determination of their custody; permanent termination of the parent-child relationship; judicial consent for marriage or employment when required by law; support obligations by parents; and resolution of custody disputes involving children under the continuing jurisdiction of the Court.

In addition, the Juvenile Court shares concurrent jurisdiction with other courts over traffic offenses committed by juveniles and over adults for offenses committed against children such as contributing to delinquency, neglect or abuse.

Judiciary

There are presently eleven Juvenile Court Judges sitting in the five geogrpahic districts throughout the state. Juvenile Court Judges maintain the same standards of qualifications as do judges of the District and Circuit Courts. A Juvenile Court Nominating Commission, meets to nominate candidates for judicial vacancies for appointment for six year terms by the Governor, with subsequent Senate confirmation. Under the newly revised Judicial Article to the State Constitution Juvenile Court Judges must stand for unopposed retention elections as do District and Circuit Court Judges.

The Juvenile Court Act provides that the judges may appoint qualified persons to serve as referees to assist with the legal processing of juvenile cases. The referee is a hearing officer who hears cases assigned by the Court and observes all rules and procedures which govern the Court. Referees must be graduates of an accredited law school and must be members in good standing of the Utah Bar. Appeals from decisions of referees are heard by a judge. Two referees serve in the more populated areas of the state.

Administration

The Board of Juvenile Court Judges is responsible for the overall operation of the statewide Juvenile Court system. The Board has the responsibility to set administrative policy and procedure for the Juvenile Court. Each judge is a member of the Board of Juvenile Court Judges. Regular board of judges meetings are held to evaluate the operation of the Juvenile Court throughout Utah and to plan improvements and modifications to keep pace with ever-changing patterns of court referrals.

The Juvenile Court Act also provides for a full time Juvenile Court Administrator who serves at the pleasure of the Board of Judges. The Juvenile Court Administrator has the responsibility to prepare the court's budget, recommend improvements in court administration and services, supervise and provide consultation to the juvenile districts regarding court services, recruitment, inservice training and fiscal management, coordinate services with other state agencies and provide statistical and operations data. A small staff compliments the Court Administrator, giving assistance and monitoring specific areas of assignment.

District Directors of Court Services serve as members of the statewide administrative team, planning and executing court programs in each district. The Juvenile Court Administrator supervises the directors in each district with the approval of the judges of that district. The Directors of Court Services with judicial approval appoint the Court clerks in each district and are the appointing authority for all other non-judicial staff. The Juvenile Court Administrator also coordinates efforts with the State Court Administrator to ensure a unified administrative approach with the other levels of courts within the state court system.

Juvenile Court Caseload

In the Juvenile Court, caseload has traditionally been measured in terms of disposition data. This is because cases that are received in the Juvenile Court go through a screening process and not all are filed for formal court hearing. In the Furthermore, Juvenile Court dispositions are reported on a calendar year basis rather than by fiscal year as are District and Circuit Court cases.

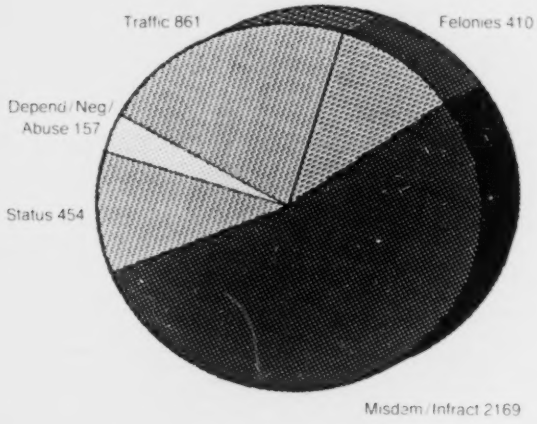
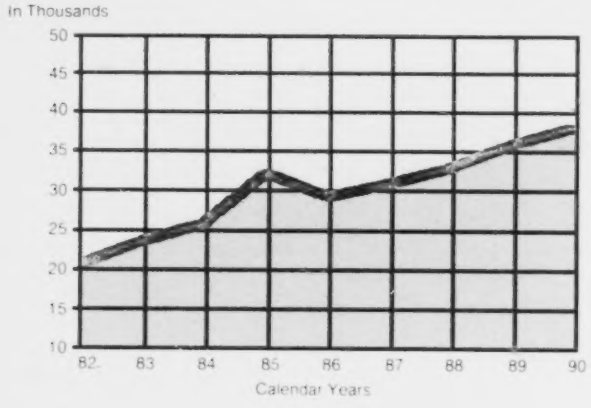
Juvenile Court Offenses Per Judge By Case Type — 1984



Juvenile Court Projected Filings



During calendar year 1984 the number of dispositions recorded in the Juvenile Court increased slightly. In 1983 44,385 dispositions were recorded and in 1984 44,553 dispositions recorded, an increase of 0.3%. An increase was noted in the misdemeanor/infraction case category of 4.9%. Slight decreases were noted in all other case categories as follows: felonies, 3.1%; status offenses, 10.2% dependency, neglect and abuse cases, 1.2% and traffic cases 2.1%. Broken down by category, the Juvenile Court in 1984 disposed of 4,505 felonycases, 23,856 misdemeanor and infraction cases, 4,991 status offense cases, 1,729 dependency, neglect and abuse cases and 9,472 traffic cases.

Despite only slight growth in juvenile cases during 1984 it is anticipated that future growth in filings will be much greater. During the first half of 1985 juvenile court cases have already shown a 21% increase over 1984 levels. This shows a continuation of trends established in the past few years of consistent caseload growth.

Juvenile Court Financing

The Utah Juvenile Court is funded entirely by the state. During fiscal year 1984-85 the Juvenile Court budget increased 11% over fiscal year 1983-84, from $5,762,900 to $6,427,600. A breakdown of Juvenile Court funding occurs as follows: probation services, 21%; judicial and referees salaries, 10%; operations (clerical salaries, current expense and capital expenditures), 46%; administrative office, 8% and intake services, 15%.

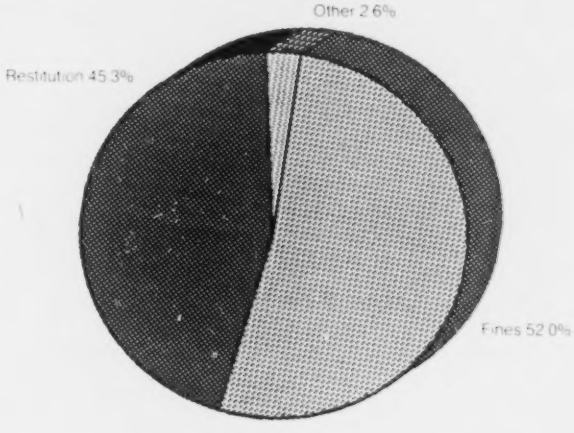
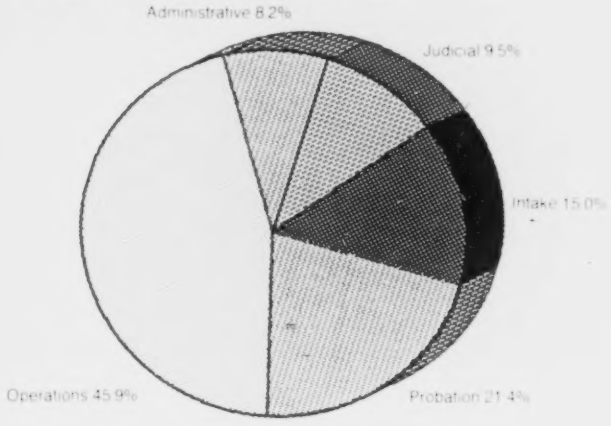
Juvenile Court Revenues By Category — Calendar Year 1984



Juvenile Court Expenditures By Category — Calendar Year 1984



Total Juvenile Court revenues increased from $699,721 in 1983 to $807,504 during 1984, a 15.4% increase. Juvenile Court revenues are broken down into three categories: fines, restitution and other (miscellaneous revenues). Fine revenues during fiscal year 1984-85 totaled $420,283, restitution revenues $366,249 and other revenues $20,972. By law Juvenile Court fines are sent to the county in which they are collected. Restitution is returned directly to the victim.

Programs and Activities

Probation. The Juvenile Court probation department has the general responsibility of carrying out or monitoring compliance with the orders and expectations of the court regarding probation. Probation officers may function as intake processing offices or as probation supervision officers. Both are essential to the Juvenile Court's effectiveness. In the rural areas of the state the probation officer may serve both the intake and supervision functions.

Restitution. In 1979, the Utah Legislature amended the Juvenile Court Act to allow the court to withhold 20% of the money collected from fines or forfeitures for a restitution work program. Since 1979 the court has used this money to pay victims after the convicted youth has worked sufficient time for a public or non-profit organization. Youth are paid the minimum wage for their efforts. The money is transmitted directly to the victim by the court. Over $84,000 was available for use in this program in 1984, representing 25,000 hours of public service at minimum wage rates.

Work Program. Utah law provides that the Juvenile Court may order that a child be required to repair or replace or otherwise make restitution for damage or loss caused by his wrongful act. Through its probation department, the court can also encourage the development of employment or work programs to enable children to fulfill their restitution obligations. As a result, the probation departments in each district have developed a variety of public work projects to serve youth.

Volunteers and Student Programs. Volunteers are used by the Juvenile Court, generally on a district level. Members of the community are afforded an excellent opportunity to be actively involved in the court process. Students from various universities and colleges are provided with a valuable learning experience while serving in a variety of field and work study placements ranging from juvenile counseling and supervision, to tutoring and chaperoning. Each year several graduate students conduct research in the Juvenile Court system.

Advisory Committees. The State Citizens Advisory Committee and the advisory committees serving local jurisdictional districts are considered an integral part of the Juvenile Court system. Their primary function is to study and make recommendations concerning the operation of the Juvenile Courts. Each advisory committee is made up of citizen representatives of civic, religious, business and professional groups as well as other citizens interested in the protection and well-being of children and families in the State of Utah.

Employee Orientation and In-Service Training. The Juvenile Court has recently adopted employee orientation and in-service training programs. The orientation program provides a six part introduction to Court Services with two primary objectives: to give the new employee an overview of the Juvenile Court, the judicial branch of government and the duties he or she will perform; and to certify each employee as a qualified officer of the court. Certification and formal swearing into office follows completion of the course and successfully passing qualifying examinations.

In-service training is a follow-up or companion program to the basic orientation course. Each district conducts its own in-service training. All employees are required to participate in fifty hours of training per year. Directors of court services, who are the chief administrative officers in the district, jointly constitute the state training committee. The committee determines subject matter and approves training activities. Each employee is certified annually upon completion of the required number of hours in training.

Issues

A single issue dominates the state Juvenile Court system. Accommodating the substantial growth in referrals, brought on by the rapidly growing youth population is of primary concern to the court. Providing required resources to handle the growing workload is a challenge that will remain throughout the decade of the 1980's.

CIRCUIT COURT

The Circuit Court Act of 1977 authorized the creation of a statewide court of record of limited jurisdiction to replace the former City Court system. On July 1, 1983, the Circuit Court through legislative amendments became fully state funded. The Circuit Court makes the services of law trained judges easily accessible to all citizens of the state.

There are twelve circuits in the state and currently thirty-seven full-time Circuit Court Judges. Each Circuit has at least one primary location, served by a full-time judge and clerical staff. A circuit may also include secondary locations, staffed by county employees and municipal departments, staffed by municipal employees. Circuit judges travel to secondary locations and municipal departments to hold court.

The state reimburses the county or city for secondary location and municipal department expenses on a contractual basis. The state receives most of the fines, fees and forfeitures collected by the court. A portion of the monies collected as forfeitures are remitted to the city or county which initiates and prosecutes matters before the court.

Jurisdiction

The jurisdiction of the Circuit Court is established in U.C.A. 78-4-5. The Circuit Courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the District Court for civil cases involving less than $10,000 and may accept cases filed in the District Court and transferred under court rules. The Circuit Courts have jurisdiction to try criminal charges for misdemeanors, infractions and traffic offenses and can hold preliminary hearings to bind over accused felons to stand trial in District Court.

Judiciary

Circuit Court Judges maintain the same standards of qualification as do judges of the District Court. Pursuant to the 1985 judicial article revision to the Utah Constitution, Circuit Court Judges are subject to an unopposed retention election at the first general election held no more than three years after appointment, then every sixth year thereafter. Vacant judicial positions are filled through a nominating commission process by gubernatorial appointment with approval by the Senate.

Administration

The Presiding Judge of each judicial circuit is elected by the other judges of that circuit for a term of office of not less than two years. The Presiding Judge, in addition to judicial responsibilities, has the responsibility to oversee the activities and operation of the court in each circuit. He is assisted in the discharge of these administrative duties by a Trial Court Executive, a professional administrator who is appointed by the Presiding Judge with approval of the majority of judges in the circuit. In addition, Clerks of the Court are appointed in each Circuit Court location. Under the direction of the Trial Court Executives, the Court Clerks oversee the clerical operation in each primary location.

The State Court Administrator's Office also has statutory responsibility to assist in and ensure the efficient operation of the Circuit Court system through establishing and coordinating administrative policies and procedures and supplying resource materials and technical assistance.

Caseload

The Circuit Court caseload (FTA/Parking excluded) increased to 356,920 total filings during fiscal year 1984-85, up 12.9% from the 315,967 filings recorded in 1983-84. Filing increases were noted in the civil and traffic case categories, with increases of 5% and 21% respectively. A slight decrease in total workload was noted as a result of a decrease in parking citations filed. However, since the vast majority of parking citations are clerically processed using computers and are adjudicated through bail commissioners, they do not have as direct an impact on workload as do other case filings.

Dispositions for civil, small claims, criminal and traffic cases also showed an increase for 1984-85. Partly as a result of an increase in case filings, total dispositions increased 13%, from 204,158 in 1983-84 to 230,764 during 1984-85. Disposition increases were also recorded in civil and traffic cases during this reporting period.

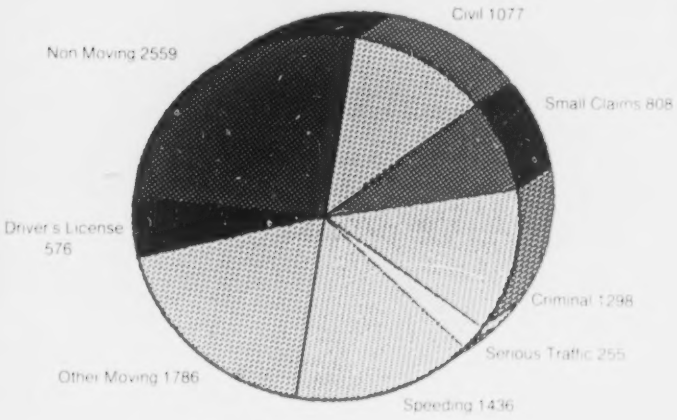
Circuit Court Filings Per Judge By Case Type — 1984-85



It is anticipated that current trends of caseload increases will continue in the future, resulting in an overall increase in Circuit Court filings during fiscal year 1985-86. These increases will be caused by:

- continued population growth, particularly along the Wasatch front and in Southwestern Utah;
- stricter enforcement of traffic offenses;
- special emphasis through federal grant programs on DUI arrests;
- continuing increases in the use of civil litigation to resolve contractual disputes.

Despite the increase in filing activity there is not likely to be any significant impact on case processing delay. Continued emphasis on procedural improvements, coupled with approved and requested system-wide automation and additions to clerical staffs, will allow the Circuit Court initially to keep abreast of the workload increases projected. Filing to disposition time frames in the Circuit Court continue to be among the lowest of any limited jurisdiction court in the nation.

Financing

When the Circuit Court became a state funded system on July 1, 1983, the cost of personnel, equipment, travel and office expense became a state obligation for primary locations. Secondary locations continue to be reimbursed for these expenses by contract. The cities and counties of primary locations still retain a portion of the costs of the system including some bailiff services, utility expenses (partially recouped by state lease payments), civil jury and witness fees and costs of indigent defense and service of process.

Programs And Activities

Significant past year activities in the Circuit Court include the following:

Data Processing. In 1983 when the State assumed full state funding of the Circuit Courts, included in the funding were significant costs for data processing services provided by cities through contract. Pursuant to a review of the effectiveness of these services, the courts recommended to the Legislature that management of trial court data processing be turned over to the State Court Administrator. Accordingly, the Legislature approved a three year development and implementation program to establish a statewide automated network that will begin with the Circuit Courts. The Utah Legislature has recognized the need to provide the courts with the automated systems required to process more than 700,000 civil, criminal, small claims and traffic cases filed each year.

In fiscal 1984-85, partial implementation of this program began in Ogden, St. George, Logan, Clearfield, Layton and Bountiful. Most of these locations are using personal computers for word processing and accounting. By fiscal 1986 Salt Lake City, Murray, Sandy, West Valley and Orem will be operating on the distributive network with comprehensive automated systems. At the end of fiscal 1987 the remaining medium to high volume Circuit Courts will be fully automated.

This data processing system will allow each participating court to automate the jury management, register of actions, case calendaring and scheduling, case indexing, warrants and accounting functions of the court. The system will also provide word processing, electronic mail and production of management information needed by the courts, the Legislature, other criminal justice agencies and the public.

Circuit Court Training. The Circuit Clerk's Annual Conference was held in March of 1985. During the one and one-half day meeting the clerks received information and a demonstration concerning uses of automation in the courts. Specialized workshops were conducted in accounting, personnel, security, and compliance with Rule 4.1 of the Uniform Rules of Practice. Civil and criminal case processing procedures for both large and small volume courts were discussed. Sessions were also provided on the Statewide Judicial Information System, dissemination of court information and recent legislation affecting Circuit Court operations.

During the fall of 1984 regional meetings were held for the northern, central and southern areas of the state, sponsored by the Utah Association of Circuit Court Clerks. The Office of the Court Administrator participated in those meetings and provided training to the clerks in state purchasing regulations and procedures.

A number of Circuit Court Clerks completed a management certification program offered by the State Division of Personnel. This was a course in basic management principles and supervisory skills to help the clerks develop added expertise in their current positions as well as increased potential for advancement.

Driver education. Referrals of defendants to educational programs were made to increase driver awareness of responsibilities on the road.

Pro tem judges. Continued use was made of local attorneys, who volunteer to hear small claim disputes so that full-time judicial resources can be devoted to more complex civil and criminal cases.

Bail commissioners. Trained bail commissioners are used as hearing officers to deal with the heavy volume of traffic cases in the Fifth Circuit.

Accounting and auditing reviews. Increased auditing activity resulted in the improvement of accounting policies and practices in all Circuit Court locations, and led to the creation of an Accounting Procedures Committee to develop uniform written procedures for all financial activities in the Court.

Clerical weighted caseload formula. A workload weighting formula was developed to determine clerical personnel needs in the primary locations.

Research studies. On a regular basis, teams of volunteer students from local universities have been used to conduct studies of clerical and administrative activities and to recommend improvements in operational policies and procedures.

Issues

One of the primary issues facing the circuit court is to develop a uniform computerization of manual processing systems. This is particularly crucial in the larger court locations. Automation improvements in case scheduling, fine tracking, defendant past history and other areas of case management are needed to increase clerical efficiency and provide immediate access to information required for effective judicial sentencing.

It is anticipated that proposals to administratively adjudicate parking and minor traffic offense violations, similar to programs already established in courts nationwide, will be considered by some court locations and expanded by others during fiscal year 1985-86. Administrative processing of parking citations by the City has proved successful in Ogden. In Salt Lake City and Provo the adjudication of parking and minor traffic violations through the use of bail commissioners has effectively removed this high volume burden from the Circuit Court's law-trained judges, freeing the judges to focus their skills on more complex criminal and civil cases.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE COURTS

Utah's Justice of the Peace Courts are lay courts (staffed by non lawyer judges) that have their origin rooted deeply in the history of judicial organization. King Edward III of England issued a statute believed to have created the office of Justice of the Peace in 1360. The office flourished and reached its pinnacle of importance on England by the eighteenth century.

The office of Justice of the Peace, along with the English common and statutory law came to America with its colonization and expanded with the westward movement. Duties of the Justices of the Peace in Utah Territory were outlined in an act passed in 1852. In 1874 legislation was passed which provided the basis for the funtioning of the Justice of the Peace Courts for many years.

The original Constitution of the State of Utah provided for the office of Justice of the Peace and made that office an integral part of the Utah judicial system. The revised judicial article approved by the electorate in 1984 provides for the establishment of courts not of record by statute and allows the establishment and continuation of a lay court system in the state.

Jurisdiction

There are two types of Justice Courts in the state. Municipal Justice Courts may be established in any city or town that has not created a Circuit Court. In cities or towns where Justice Courts are established they have exclusive jurisdiction in all cases involving municipal ordinance violations and have concurrent jurisdiction with the Circuit and other Justice Courts in the county to try Class B and C misdemeanors and infractions. County (precinct) Justice Courts are found in every county in the State. They have concurrent jurisdiction with the Circuit Courts over all Class B and C misdemeanors and infractions committed within the counties in which the courts are established. Justice courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the Juvenile Court and Circuit Courts over minors charged with traffic offenses.

Judiciary

Currently there are 156 Justices of the Peace in Utah who preside over 121 municipal Justice Courts and 64 county (precinct) Justice Courts. There are a total of 185 Justice Courts statewide. Some Justices of the Peace preside over more than one court.

For many years the Justice Courts of the state, particularly in outlying areas, operated in relative isolation often with little or no training, inadequate legal reference materials, facilities and clerical support. During that time some legal counsel and assistance was given by District and City Court judges.

Administration

In 1970 the Utah Justices of the Peace established a statewide Justice of the Peace Association. This organization sponsors training seminars in conjunction with the Utah League of Cities and Towns and appoints representatives to introduce and monitor legislation. As a result of this association and the leadership therefrom, considerable progress has been made in improving the quality of justice in the Justice Courts.

In addition, the Office of the State Court Administrator provides some administrative support, principally through assistance in training programs conducted together with the Justice of the Peace Association.

Caseload

During fiscal year 1984-85 the Justice of the Peace Court filings increased 15.2% over the previous fiscal year. Significant filing increases were noted in the criminal and traffic case categories of 17% and 15.8% respectively. Parking tickets also increased approximately 8.6%. There was a small decrease in civil and small claims cases filed of .8% over the previous fiscal year.

Case dispositions during fiscal year 1984-85 increased overall 16% over fiscal year 1983-84. Increases were recorded in the criminal (9.3%), traffic (18.9%), and parking (9.3%) categories, with a decrease of 9.9% in dispositions noted in the civil and small claims case category.

It is anticipated that caseload trends in the Justice of the Peace Courts will follow those of other courts in the state. Future case filings should show a slow but steady growth as they have for the past several years. Factors that will influence

Financing

Justice of the Peace Court revenues totaled $9,412,790 for fiscal year 1984-85. This was an increase of 12.1% over 1983-84 revenues totaling $8,395,083. The greatest increase in revenue occurred in the victim restitution fund which showed a 145.9% increase, from $106,784 in 1983-84 to $262,638 in 1984-85. The fines, fees and forfeitures and the post assessment fee revenue categories showed increases (11.3% and 8.9% respectively). Revenue from DUI rehabilitation fees showed a 18% decrease during fiscal year 1984-85.

Programs and Activities

Since 1974 the Judicial Council with the support of the Justice of the Peace Association has effected a number of improvements in the Justice of the Peace system with the introduction and passage of legislation. Some of these improvements include:

- Mandatory annual training for all Justices of the Peace with removal from office as the penalty for continued non-compliance.
- Statutory provisions for providing adequate facilities.
- A mandate that justices be provided with up-to-date legal reference materials by the counties or cities served by the court.
- A requirement that Justice Courts be provided with adequate clerical support.
- A statutory change in the term of office of municipal Justices of the Peace from a two to a four year term; and providing that justices may only be removed from office for cause through action by the Judicial Conduct Commission.

In addition to the above statutory improvements, the Office of the State Court Administrator, in conjunction with the Justices of the Peace Association, has provided training sessions for Justice of the Peace Clerks.

Issues

In the future, resolution of some present concerns will facilitate yet further improvement in the operation of the Justice Courts. Some of these concerns include:

A clear defining and upgrading of the jurisdiction of the Justice Courts is needed. Additional statutory language would assist in clarifying present misunderstandings concerning jurisdiction and venue issues between different elements of the court system and eliminate judge shopping by enforcement personnel. Making appropriate jurisdictional changes would also coincide with an expected forthcoming revision of the misdemeanor offense statutes.

Additional and specialized administrative support is needed in the Justice of the Peace system. Unlike other levels in the state court system the Justice Courts presently do not have a court administrator or administrative staffs to effectively handle important administrative problems. While the Office of the State Court Administrator has recognized the problem, adequate staff is not available to respond to the questions and needs of 185 separate Justice Courts. The assignment of an administrative staff member to the Justice Courts would greatly assist in providing administrative support to this large and diverse segment of the state judicial system. In this regard, the setting of appropriate administrative standards by statute would help to further enhance the Utah Justice Court system. These standards should be mandatory and administratively enforced.

Sixteen county seats are designated as secondary Circuit Court locations by UCA 78-4-9-(3)(a). In addition, five municipal departments have been established pursuant to UCA 78-4-6. The counties and cities served by secondary locations or municipal departments provide clerical personnel, supplies, court space, and other requirements of the Circuit Court. The State then reimburses the counties / cities for these expenditures through contracts. Yearly adjustments in the contractual amounts are based upon changes in court caseload, actual county and city expenditures reported, and considerations for inflation. Certain costs, i.e., juror / witness fees and courtroom security services, are paid by the State separately from the contracts upon specific requests for reimbursement.

Following is a three-year history of contract data showing the State's support of Circuit Court operations in the secondary locations and municipal departments.
